Duro-Last[®], Inc. Joins Vinyl Sustainability Council

WASHINGTON, DC, February 19, 2021 – The Vinyl Sustainability Council (VSC), a self-funded business council advancing sustainability in the vinyl industry, is pleased to welcome Duro-Last, Inc. to its membership.

“We’re pleased to have Duro-Last join the Vinyl Sustainability Council,” said Jay Thomas, VSC Executive Director. “Their commitment to sustainability is evident in their recycling program and work to repurpose production equipment to produce and donate PPE during the pandemic. I look forward to working together to advance the sustainability of the vinyl industry.”

Duro-Last, headquartered in Saginaw, Michigan, is the world’s largest manufacturer of custom-fabricated roofing systems. And for more than 20 years, sustainability has been an inherent part of the Duro-Last culture. To date, Duro-Last has recycled more than 100 million pounds of PVC through sustainable manufacturing operations and their Recycle Your Roof program.

“Joining the Vinyl Sustainability Council further demonstrates our long term corporate commitment to sustainability,” said Tom Saeli, Duro-Last CEO. “Sustainability has been at the core of our company’s business throughout our 40 plus year history, and we focus on recycling at every step of the product lifecycle. I’m looking forward to seeing how we can continue to advance the industry’s sustainability.”

The VSC is open for membership to any company within the U.S. vinyl value chain from resin manufacturer to product retailer. Members work together to develop and implement best practices and innovation leading to continuous improvement throughout the industry, while promoting these achievements to key stakeholders.
